Architecture students critique a 3D Model of stadium in the Robotics and Digital Fabrication Lab (RDF)
Dear Colleagues and Friends,

One of the joys of preparing an annual report is that it gives us the opportunity to look back and be thankful for all that has been accomplished.

Broken down by academic department, the report tells a story of a multi-disciplinary college committed to student success, inclusivity, excellence, and innovation and united by a student-centric mission of experiential learning and applied research and creative activities. The data points, photos, and achievements in the report are further evidence of how CARTA continues to strategically evolve and reach new heights of excellence in teaching, creative activities, research, community engagement, fundraising, and service.

Some of the highlights of this past year include

- Achieving national recognition for the accomplishments of our students, faculty, and academic degree programs.
- Initiating the Robotics and Digital Fabrication Lab (RDF), the Immersive Studio For Altered Reality (iSTAR), and the Media Hub --- all newly constructed, state-of-the-art facilities equipped with cutting-edge technologies.
- Developing new degrees and programs that provide our students with on-time, career-ready skill sets that enable them to have a competitive advantage in the 21st century innovation and information economy.
- Expanding our experiential-learning opportunities, increasing our number of student internships, and launching the South Florida Media Network (SFMN) with news bureaus in Miami, New York City, and Washington, DC.
- Having a record-breaking year in philanthropy, including a $10M naming gift in support of our School of Music and Performing Arts --- the largest gift in the history of the College.

I am grateful and humbled by the honor to serve as Dean of CARTA. This was another remarkable year for us, and I ask that you join me in congratulating and thanking our exceptional faculty, professional staff, students, alumni, patrons, and friends for their hard work, their commitment, and for making CARTA special each and every day.

In the spirit of the Blue + Gold,

Brian Schriner
Dean

The Department of Communication is committed to educating our students to become professionals, scholars and leaders in advertising, public relations and strategic communication in a multicultural and digital world. Our faculty conducts research for and about organizational communication, advertising and public relations. This includes researching audiences, messages and media as well as the influences and effects of strategic communication. Students are prepared for the fast-paced and demanding positions in organizational and strategic communication, advertising and public relations fields.

The program teaches students to see strategic communication as a vehicle for social change, as well as a tool for influence and reputation management. Combining the expertise of faculty who are established professionals and scholars, students receive an in-depth understanding of the most current issues in the fields of advertising, public relations, and strategic communication and conduct research to advance knowledge in these fields.

The Department of Journalism + Media is a dynamic, digitally centered environment, focused on creating innovative and entrepreneurial content while maintaining a commitment to the tenets of writing and journalism. The faculty is internationally recognized for work in researching the effects of social media, media literacy and issues of power, race and ideology in journalism.

Students in the journalism and broadcasting majors work directly with career professionals, conducting research and learning the trade of journalism in the digital age through real production. Those in digital media studies become some of the industry’s up-and-coming media professionals and innovators, tackling the trials of social media and enhancing communication through art, music, journalism and other forms of expression.

The Department of Journalism + Media is the place to learn from professionals and scholars with networks and experiences that help students gain internships, produce meaningful messages and prepare for innovative and advanced media careers.

DEPARTMENT OF ARCHITECTURE

The Department of Architecture believes architecture to be a conceptually based intellectual endeavor and form of critical inquiry that addresses built and natural environments from the scale of the city to the scale of the detail. The faculty is committed to producing conceptual thinkers and skilled makers versed in the techniques and knowledge of the discipline and who are cognizant of critical theory, history, science and progressive social values. To realize these objectives, design is taught as a critical, speculative and creative endeavor embracing both the humanities and the sciences. Students work and study with talented faculty in many contexts: in the studio and the classroom, in cities around the world through study-abroad programs and in the labs, which include the Fabrication Lab, Structures and Environment Technologies (SET) Lab and the new Robotics and Digital Fabrication Lab (RDF Lab).

Architecture is an academic pursuit which involves learning by making and experiencing the tangible realities of a building. The department offers a vigorous five or six-year master of architecture accredited by the National Architectural Accreditation Board (NAAB) and a post-professional master of arts in architecture.

The Department of Interior Architecture seeks to remain at the forefront of intellectual activity within the fields of interior architecture and interior design. The curriculum compels students, graduates and faculty to imagine and create a world that embraces the future by means of responsible, sustainable and inclusively built environments. Students address specific interior typologies of the region, ranging from hospitality, retail and workplace design, while also engaging in focused programs such as cruise ship and super yacht design and health care design. The degree programs are gateways to preparing graduates who embrace these current and future domains.

The program is a beacon for meaningful and effective design activities where research, teaching and service help define interior architecture within its global context.

DEPARTMENT OF
LANDSCAPE ARCHITECTURE + ENVIRONMENTAL AND URBAN DESIGN

The Department of Landscape Architecture prepares students for research and practice while focusing on the analysis, planning, design and management of the natural and built environment of tropical and subtropical landscapes. The goal is to educate students who can serve and lead the community in the enhancement of the quality of life through the aesthetic, meaningful and sustainable design of the physical environment.

The rigorous programs of study foster creativity, promote collaboration, refine critical thinking skills and instill an ethos of social engagement. Faculty demonstrate – through award-winning research and design – a commitment to FIU’s mission as a public urban research university. FIU currently holds the only landscape architecture program in the United States specializing in tropical and subtropical landscapes, climates, geographies and ecologies.

This page contains information about the rankings and achievements of the Landscape Architecture and Environmental and Urban Design (LAEUD) department at FIU. It highlights the department’s ranking by DesignIntelligence, the work of Professor Roberto Rovira, and alumna Tricia Keffer’s award.

Art + Art History student Osvaldo Samper won the First Place Award at the Paint Me Miami 2018 Juried Painting Competition.

The Department of Art + Art History provides a sanctuary for the development of new visions, ideas and techniques. Studio art majors have the opportunity to work in a variety of disciplines acquiring basic and advanced skills while exploring a wide range of new possibilities. Art education majors go through a rigorous program of study, which includes studio practice, theoretical and pedagogical training. Students of art history learn the research methodology, theory and criticism necessary for careers in contemporary practice.

Located in South Florida, the department serves a truly international population of local residents and those who come from all over the world, especially from many European, Latin American and Caribbean countries. South Florida is garnering much attention from the international art community for events such as Art Basel, Art Miami and Art Palm Beach. Both faculty and students of the department are regular participants in these signature events.

The School of Music offers a unique learning experience within Miami’s only public research university. Music students benefit from working in a conservatory-style atmosphere alongside internationally celebrated performers and composers, scholars and teachers, who are dedicated to inspiring and mentoring the next generation of music leaders. The school has educated hundreds of performers, scholars and music educators, many of whom are now leaders in their respective fields across the state of Florida and around the world.

Housed in the Wertheim Performing Arts Center since 1996, the school attracts internationally acclaimed musicians and scholars every year to present masterclasses, guest lectures or to perform side-by-side with students and faculty artists. The breadth of performance opportunities offered at FIU include orchestral, band, choral, jazz, large and small chamber ensembles, fully-staged operas and the latest in cutting-edge new music.

DEPARTMENT OF THEATRE

The Department of Theatre immerses students in the practical work of theatre production while familiarizing them with world theatre history, criticism, literature, theory and analysis. Accredited by the National Association of Schools of Theatre (NAST), the department produces four to five shows a year – completely designed, performed and built by students and faculty – spanning genres, historical eras and styles. The shows serve as the laboratories where students put their learning into practice.

Only 125 majors are chosen for the program. This gives students many opportunities to work on productions and receive one-on-one mentorship from quality faculty. The program, uniquely situated in a major global city distinguished by cultural diversity and a vibrant arts scene, provides students with all the benefits of a large university with the luxury of a small program.

Housed in the Wertheim Performing Arts Center, the center offers a professional-caliber venue with a 200-seat proscenium theatre and a 90-120 seat black box theatre. It also has cutting-edge scene and costume shops, a design studio and a light lab stocked with the latest technology.
